

Your wearable technology map

Where can we wear technology and what can it do?

Opportunities for the travel industry

Wearable technologies open up the opportunity for travel businesses to expand and redefine their propositions. From developing bespoke wearable technologies themselves, to developing applications or services based on those that already exist. Explore the technologies below and think about how wearables could change your future.

